Full Academic Curriculum Vitae

Statement of Interest:

- In a separate document, provide a brief statement on how the Teaching the South Caucasus workshop will serve your interests and/or coursework.
- The statement should be 500-750 words in length, not including bibliographic references, tables, charts, or other supporting information.
- Consider ways in which this program with regional experts who research and teach about the South Caucasus, local South Caucasian regional scholars, and on-site visits to local places of interest, would serve to enrich your coursework and invigorate your teaching.

Please note that application reviewers may not be specialists in your field. The language of your statement should be clear and free of jargon.

Outline of current or pedagogical project:

- In a separate document, please provide a brief outline on a current or pedagogical project where you plan to incorporate materials from this program about the South Caucasus into courses you currently teach or are planning to teach.
- The statement should be 200-500 words in length, not including bibliographic references, tables, charts, or other supporting information.
- Prior to travel, selected applicants will be asked to produce a more detailed draft teaching module in their selected subtopic areas. The goal is for participants to have projects to bring to the program that they will be able to build out through their experiences, engagements with other scholars, teachers, and professionals and with additional local resources and materials.

One letter of recommendation

- The letter of recommendation may be from a colleague, collaborator, departmental chair/head, mentor, dean, or other administrator. The recommender should not be related to the applicant.
 - The letter should be emailed directly from the recommender to programs@arisc.org
